- Collection agencies

With every service we provide, you can count on secure, speedy and dependable deliveries.

Multiple redundancies are built into our system, including backup printers and PCs, data backup and alternate power supplies, so we never miss a deadline.

Whether data is being transferred or stored, advanced security systems keep it safe.

And INTEGRAM outperforms most continuous-form systems when it comes to automation and efficiency. Most of our competitors can't process multi-page statements automatically. INTEGRAM, however, can process an unlimited number of statement pages, with up to 7 sheets fully automated, while our handwork division can accurately process even more varied-length statements.

Here are just a few of the ways INTEGRAM's services are designed to help give financial-sector firms like yours a competitive edge.

Financial institutions must always be prepared to mail error-free documents on the tightest of deadlines. INTEGRAM has excess capacity ready to help.

When you nail every detail, monthly statements make a major impression

When your account statements are timely, accurate and attractive, your institution demonstrates its commitment to exceptional service.

INTEGRAM understands. When it comes to speed, our networked system of high-capacity laser printers ensures that there's never a delay in getting your statements out on time.

Regarding appearance, we have worked with clients to redesign their statements to be extra-attractive and clear. And in terms of precision and accuracy, INTEGRAM was founded to produce error-free communications at a high rate of speed. That's been our specialty for 20 years.

Each of your statements makes an impression on your customer. INTEGRAM understands, and applies its resources and expertise into making every one reflect your organization's quality and professionalism.

(over, please)

When your statements arrive on-time, error-free, and looking professional, customers see a reliable, service-centered institution.

Has your in-house processing department become under-used and over-expensive?

Once it made perfect sense to have a turnkey statement-processing department in-house. Today, though, as more customers request their statements in electronic form, the expenses associated with an in-house department can be counterproductive.

In-line and continuous-form systems require large volumes to be cost efficient. And all in-house systems require finding and training employees, paying wages and benefits, providing physical space and equipment, and the cost of connecting it all to the outside world.

Given all of that, this may be the ideal time to meet with an INTEGRAM customer service rep to determine the significant savings of outsourcing today.

When companies and brokers need to reach shareholders quickly, INTEGRAM is ready

Corporations facing an upcoming shareholders meeting know that proxy statements must go out on time. The SEC requires them. Shareholders demand them.

There's no room for compromise.

So don't risk sending them with a typical mailshop. Call INTEGRAM as soon as the need arises, and get our expedited-mail specialists working fast, to assure on-time delivery and shareholder satisfaction.

Similarly, when brokers issue confirmations of stock transactions, they must be processed with total accuracy, and without delay. Many mailshops will enthusiastically accept this work but only INTEGRAM was designed with the excess capacity to always get it out on time.

The result: We're always prepared to meet your deadline. We always have enough printers to do your job—immediately upon its arrival—and reliably deliver error-free documents at unmatched speed.

In a world of identity theft, mailed documents are more secure

Your customers have concerns, these days, about identity theft. According to the Federal Trade Commission, their data is exceptionally secure when sent by mailed communications.

Customers concerned about identity theft will appreciate knowing that when their private data is sent by mail, it's being delivered by the safest means of communication. And even safer than in their own pockets!

From security to accuracy to unrivaled speed of delivery, INTEGRAM gives your institution the power to set itself apart in your industry.
